

Hopes for Vote This Session on Pay-Hour Bill

Roosevelt Aims Views in Letter to Chairman Norton

PETITION PLANNED
Possible Adjournment
Rush May Prevent Action

Washington (AP)—President Roosevelt expressed the hope today that the house could vote on wage-hour legislation at this session despite refusal of the rules committee to give it priority.

Chairman Norton (D-N. J.) of the house labor committee made public a letter which Mr. Roosevelt sent her Saturday from Charleston, S. C., suggesting the bill might reach the floor either by a petition or by reconsideration of the rules committee's action.

Emphasizing that the committee was within its rights and that he had no right to criticize house rules, the president said he had "a profound respect for and devotion to the Democratic legislative process."

"The continuing fairness of that legislative process is the foundation of enduring democracy," he said.

SUGGESTS PLAN
Mayor Fiorella LaGuardia of New York today proposed a "permanent recovery committee." He would have the group work out a program and submit it to congress at a special session next fall.

National Measure
"There are, however, certain types of measures in each session which are of undoubted national importance because they relate to major policies of government and affect the lives of millions of people."

"It has always seemed to me that in the case of these measures—few in any one session—the whole membership of the legislative body should be given full and free opportunity to discuss them. This discussion may end in drastic amendment, or in recommitment, or even in complete rejection."

"In the case of wage and hour legislation, the majority party of the house is committed to legislation by its national platform—and I have no personal doubt that a large majority of the membership of the house believes that the house as a whole should pass its judgment on such legislation."

Adjournment Issue
"Mrs. Norton said she would draft a petition this week. If it is signed by 218 members—a majority of the house—automatic consideration of the wage-hour bill would result."

An impending adjournment rush, however, may block her plans. Many members said privately the fact that the petition could not be made effective before May 23 at the earliest meant the house would not reach the controversial legislation.

They agreed, too, that there was little chance of achieving a vote by the alternative mentioned by Mr. Roosevelt—reconsideration by the rules committee.

Five southern Democrats and three Republicans joined forces last Friday against five Democrats and one Republican to prevent the bill from being rushed to the floor by special procedure.

Provisions of Bill
The pending bill, which the labor committee rewrote after the house shelved one wage-hour measure last winter, should impose a nationwide minimum wage starting at 25 cents an hour and increasing to 40 cents after three years.

Maximum hours would begin at 44 a week and would drop to 40 in two years. Only industries engaged in interstate commerce would be affected.

President Roosevelt wrote to Mrs. Norton in reply to a letter in which she denounced the rules committee's "arbitrary action" and requested the chief executive's advice from his personal experience. Mr. Roosevelt said "of a difficult situation" because he once had been a legislator.

Asks Congress For Permanent Recovery Plan

LaGuardia Wants Committee to Map Plan for Special Session

URGES FLEXIBILITY
Senator Glass Against 'Making Pawn Shop Out of Treasury'

Washington (AP)—John L. Lewis, and William Green, rival captains of organized labor, endorsed President Roosevelt's spending-lending program today, but differed by more than 2,000,000 in estimates of the extent of unemployment.

Lewis, head of the Committee for Industrial Organization, said 13,000,000 to 14,000,000 million workers now are unemployed. Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, placed the figure at 11,200,000. They testified before a house appropriations subcommittee.

Washington (AP)—Mayor Fiorella LaGuardia of New York proposed today that congress set up a "permanent recovery committee" and instruct it to work out a program for submission to a special session in the fall.

LaGuardia appeared before a house appropriations subcommittee as president of the United States Conference of Mayors.

He said he had endorsed the president's spending-lending program, but urged that it be made sufficiently flexible so all parts of the country would benefit.

He said he had been asked for suggestions and had advanced the idea of a "permanent recovery committee" composed of senior members of the major committees of the house.

"Then the various bills for permanent recovery would be referred to that committee," he explained.

"They could stay here this summer when congress goes home and present the one bill, with all phases of recovery covered in it, in September or October, at a special session."

Green Backs Plan
"We've got to get the best minds of the country on this thing and do it damned quick."

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, had endorsed the spending-lending plan earlier as a means of meeting conditions caused by an unemployment increase he said had totaled 3,700,000 since September.

Green appeared at a closed session of the committee. When he left he told reporters he had "referred to the seriousness of the existing economic system" and had "recommended that congress approve the recommendations of the president."

While Green was endorsing the president's program, the veteran Senator Glass (D-Va.) said on the other side of the capitol that he opposed it because "I am not in favor of making a pawn shop out of the treasury."

"And that is what it has become," said the 80-year-old former treasury secretary.

Could End Slump

Chamber of Commerce Official Hits at Governmental Supervision

Washington (AP)—John W. O'Leary, an official of the United States Chamber of Commerce, predicted today that business organization, "given the opportunity, will be adequate to meet the difficulties which now beset us."

O'Leary, chairman of the executive committee, warned the chamber's council against efforts to provide "supervision and ultimate control of our trade associations."

"The experience which we have all had through the NRA experiment is sufficient to show how governmental supervision hampers and retards real business progress," he said.

"Every limitation upon initiative is detrimental to public and private interest alike."

His address was prepared for a meeting preliminary to the chamber's annual convention, for which 2,500 business men from all parts of the country were gathering.

The convention was being watched by administration officials, eager to ascertain how the majority of the delegates reacted to the president's "pump - priming" program and to the pledge of business-government cooperation signed by 16 prominent industrialists.

In the past, the chamber has opposed some Roosevelt economic policies. There was much discussion among the arriving delegates concerning the president's anti-trust message to congress, in which he proposed some regulation of trade associations.

Hoan Refuses Approval
For Parking Meter Plan

Millwaukee (AP)—Mayor Daniel Hoan today vetoed a parking meter ordinance, passed by the city council, which would have permitted installation of meters only in wards whose aldermen approved. The mayor said this provision would have given aldermen "virtual dictatorial power" and called this a "dangerous procedure."

Three Couples are Robbed in Chicago Of $20,000 in Gems

Chicago (AP)—Returning from a theater, Bror A. Dahlberg, president of the Celotex corporation, his wife, and two lawyers and their wives were robbed last night of jewelry they valued at more than $20,000 by two gunmen who entered their taxicab on the near north side.

The other victims were Leonard Ettelson, brother of former Corporation Counsel Samuel A. Ettelson, and his wife, Luella, and Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Dallstrom of suburban Barrington.

The party had stopped in front of the Drake Towers, where the Ettelsons live, when two men alighted from a car, ran up to their taxicab with pistols drawn and commanded coolly: "This is a stickup, all quiet now."

The robbers ordered the cab driver, Jack Finkelstein, to "drive ahead." In driving around near the loop, the women removed bracelets, rings and wrist watches, and their husbands gave up their own rings, watches and tiepins. Then the robbers forced the men to hand over their own money which Ettelson estimated at $77.

Chinese Carrying Guerilla Warfare To Shanghai Area

Thousands Reported Slipping Into City in Terrorist Campaign

Shanghai (AP)—The danger of widespread terrorism revived tension in Shanghai today as reports circulated that thousands of Chinese guerrillas had slipped into the city to harass the Japanese.

International Settlement police doubled their patrols and searched refugee camps for guerrillas, equipped with firearms and explosives, hiding their faces.

The arrest of two bomb throwers, after an attempt to blast a truck loaded with Japanese soldiers, and information that more than 2,000 terrorists had infiltrated the city, aroused police apprehensions.

One report said 5,000 special agents of the National Salvation association and other patriotic organizations were in Shanghai and the surrounding area under orders to conduct a terrorist campaign against the Japanese.

Fighting Continues
Meanwhile, fierce fighting continued on the Shanghai front, where Japan has been struggling to gain control of central China.

Latest dispatches indicated the new Japanese offensive against Suichow and the Lunghai railway has been blocked, but neither side claimed important successes.

Chinese said they were holding their defenses along the Tai-chang-chang-Yihshien - Tancheng line while making strong attacks along the entire line.

Japanese said they captured Chinese positions at Kulinko, about 100 miles northwest of Tai-chang-chang. They also asserted they had slain 10,000 Chinese in the Shantung fighting.

General Li T'oung-Jen said the Japanese offensive movement involved three army units totalling about 50,000 men, with 40,000 reserves. One body of Japanese troops is operating at Hangchow, and along the Linchong-Tai-chang-chang railway, another between Yihshien and Tai-chang-chang and the third in the Tancheng sector.

Court Delays Action on Labor Act Controversy

Washington (AP)—The supreme court postponed action for at least two weeks today on litigation involving the question of whether employers who strike are entitled to the protection of the national labor relations act.

Only a few minor opinions were delivered before the court arranged to recess until May 16 after hearing arguments in two cases.

Conference Called in Effort to Avert Strike

Milwaukee (AP)—Hopes of averting a strike of Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing company production employees hinged largely upon another mediation conference today between company officials, the United Automobile Workers' local (CIO) and the state labor board.

Members of the local Saturday batted, 2,377 to 1,174, to authorize their bargaining committee to call a strike if union demands were not met. More than half the 8,000 employees affected did not vote because, union leaders said, of indifference.

The bargaining committee had 48 hours from this morning.

Points at issue, union officials asserted included a closed shop.

Madison Man Is Named
Assistant to W. F. Ashe

Madison (AP)—James J. Hanks, 30, of Madison, was appointed today as assistant to W. F. Ashe, administrative director of the new state commerce department.

Hanks is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin and the Harvard School of Business. Since 1931 he has been a state analyst with the public service commission. Last year he was granted a three months leave of absence to do research work for the national resources committee headed by Secretary of the Interior Harold I. Ickes.

Cooking School to Offer
Ideas for Spring Menus

Spring is a season for new things, not only new clothes, new house furnishings and new gardens, but also new ideas in menu planning.

About this time of year "spring fever" sets in and appetites, jaded with heavy winter foods, require something new and unusual to tempt them. That's where Miss Mary Ann Kidd, this year's lecturer and director of the seventeenth annual Post-Crescent cooking school, which opens May 10 at the Rio theater, comes in.

Realizing that the full-time job of homemaking prevents the average woman from keeping up with the rapid changes and revolutionary improvements which are being made in her own line, Miss Kidd will give women of Appleton and vicinity the benefit of her experience and research in the series of four lessons and demonstrations the mornings of May 10, 11, 12 and 13 at the Rio theater. She will not be able to tell them how to do seven days' work in three, but she can and will show them how to trim the hours by using short cuts and labor-saving devices. Thrift ideas and one-dish meals will be demonstrated by Miss Kidd whose suggestions will range from the secret of quick, digestible French frying to the freezing of dainty deserts and molding of tempting salads.

Super-Ships Issue Put Up To President

Senate Wants Chief Executive to Act if Others Are Building Them

VANDENBERG'S PLAN
Would Permit Building 3 Vessels Up to 45,000 Tons if Necessary

Washington (AP)—The senate adopted today an amendment to the $1,156,000,000 naval expansion bill which would prevent the construction of battleships larger than 35,000 tons unless the president determines that other nations are building larger warships.

The amendment proposed by Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.) was accepted and defended by Senator Walsh (D-Mass.), floor manager for the naval expansion bill, who told the senate the navy does not desire to build ships larger than 35,000 tons unless other nations do.

Under terms of the Vandenberg amendment, the president would determine whether ships larger than 35,000 tons were officially projected, authorized or whether keels had been laid for them. In the event he found that any of these conditions had been met by other nations, he could recommend ships up to 45,000 tons, authorization for three of which would be included in the pending bill.

Objects to Plan
Senator Connally (D-Texas) protested that this would put the responsibility for recommending the large battleships on the president. There would be a "loud wail," he said, if the president found it necessary to construct such ships.

Walsh answered that the president must determine the size of battleships when he asks congress to vote appropriations to carry out the construction which would be authorized in the bill.

The amendment was adopted by a voice vote with only a few scattered "no's."

Support for the billion-dollar naval expansion program came during debate from Republican side of the senate.

Senator Hale (R-Maine), in contrast with the opposition by other Republican senators, said he believed passage of the expansion bill would put the United States in a position where it could bring about a "substantial" reduction in naval armaments through conferences with other powers.

Theologians Start 5-Year Task of Modernizing Bible

Want to Remove Words and Phrases Obscure to Present-Day Reader

Chicago (AP)—A group of distinguished theologians undertook today a monumental five-year task of revising the Bible to give "an official version embodying the best results of modern scholarship."

The revision, projected by the International Council of Religious Education, will be the first since 1901 when the American standard version was published.

Dr. William A. Irwin of the University of Chicago, one of 12 scholars chosen to do the work, said in a special interview that the revision was undertaken because "some words and phrases of the King James version, published in 1611, are obscure if not actually unintelligible to the modern reader."

"When the King James version was produced it was a great achievement of Biblical scholarship," Dr. Irwin said. "And it continues one of the literary treasures of our language, coming as it does from the age of Shakespeare and Milton."

Obscure Passages
"But what can the modern reader make of the information, for example, that the onyx stones on the shoulders of the high priest's robe were 'inclosed in ouches of gold' or that the golden candlestick was adorned with 'knops'?"

The international council, which is composed of representatives of 41 Protestant denominations of the United States and Canada and 30 state councils of religious education, acquired the copyright of the American standard edition of the revised Bible in 1929. The principal purpose of the copyright was to protect the purity of the text.

The American standard was translated from original manuscripts and the King James version, and is used widely in the churches and colleges of the denominations that compose the council.

Bluebirds Picket
Swallows' House

Marquette (AP)—Walter Fritz reports that a pair of bluebirds that have occupied one of his houses for three years, arrived this spring to find the house occupied by swallows. The bluebirds picketed back and forth before the house entrance for a day until the swallows left. The bluebirds then moved in.

In a couple of days, however, the swallows, apparently unable to find another abode, came back and repossessed. Now the angry bluebirds are picketing again.

Spohn Charges Concern
Has Not Met Test of 'Proven Integrity'

Madison (AP)—Special State Counsel William H. Spohn asked the banking commission today to revoke the securities license of the H. M. Bylesby and company, Chicago, on the charge that the company did not meet the test of "proven integrity and honesty."

Spohn made this recommendation as the commission opened its investigation into business methods of the big utility holding concern, which operates in Wisconsin and eight other states.

The investigation was ordered after a special state counsel reported discovery of blank check payments totaling $63,500 from the holding company's accounts, which they charged went to William M. Dinneen, former secretary of the Wisconsin Public Service commission.

Claims Books Irregular
Claiming that trustworthiness of the dealer was one of the most essential requirements in the securities business, Spohn said by this test the Bylesby company could not prove itself competent to sell securities in the state.

He claimed that during the years 1927 to 1930, the company "designedly" caused its books to omit to whom and for what purposes large disbursements were made. He said

Ford Company Wants to

Covington, Ky. (AP)—The Ford Motor company asked the circuit court of appeals today for permission to determine whether the national labor relations board, prior to its order against the company, consulted any one not connected with the board, including Thomas Corcoran, Benjamin V. Cohen, John L. Lewis or Homer Martin.

Corcoran and Cohen, New Deal legal advisers, headed those mentioned by the company in its demand for information.

Other over the case, Committee for Industrial Organization chief, Martin, president of the United Automobile Workers of America; and any other officers or employees of "any other department of the government," and "any officer, representative or attorney for the UAWA or the CIO."

The company submitted a list of 57 questions, asking the court to require Chairman J. Warren Madden and members Edward S. Smith and Donald Wakefield Smith of the NLRB to answer to them under oath.

The company demanded copies of any communications or communications received by the board from any of the persons mentioned, and also memoranda passed between board members and board employees who helped prepare the findings of fact and conclusions of law.

Ford seeks to set aside a labor board order of Dec. 22, 1937, charging the firm with violation of the Wagner labor act at its Detroit plants, directing that it cease what the board termed anti-union activities and reinstate 29 workers, discharged assertedly for union activity.

Accused of Killing Ohio
Couple and Setting
Fire to Home

Marion, Ohio (AP)—Prosecutor Paul D. Michel said he would place murder charges today against H. L. Roush, farm hand, who he said, admitted leaving his wife and seven children in a movie while he killed his employers, Mr. and Mrs. Homer T. Myers, and set fire to their home.

Prosecutor Michel said Roush owed his employer about $1,400 on a note. He said the confession related that Roush told Myers he had come to pay up. Myers wrote "paid in full" handed it over.

The 48-year-old farmhand then shot Myers and his wife, the confession continued. He beat Mrs. Myers on the head. She was 67 years old. Myers was 65.

Roush threw gasoline about and fire started in three places. He threw his pistol in the Scioto river. He went to the movie, picked up his family and returned to the smoldering house. The fire was put out before it reached the bodies.

Roush said he attended the movie but was trapped when he failed to relate its details. Myers was a prominent stock breeder.

Tavernkeeper Dies of Wound; Suspect Held

Shawano (AP)—Joe Brings, tavernkeeper critically wounded Saturday night by a shotgun blast fired by an unidentified assailant, died early today.

Brings was greeted by a charge from a shotgun in the doorway of his tavern, nine miles west of Shawano, when he went to investigate a noise. Police today held a suspect picked up as he hitch-hiked on a road near the tavern.

Two unidentified men had held up a young couple leaving the tavern, marching them up the road and then beating the young man with a club. When the robbers returned to their car, Brings came to the door and was shot.

The suspect was picked up hitch-hiking on a road near the tavern.

German Papers See

Making Trip"

ITALY PREPARING
Final Arrangements Being Made to Welcome Fuehrer

Berlin (AP)—Reichsfuehrer Hitler and his numerous retinue of German leaders left today for his state visit to Italy. His special train pulled out for Rome at 4:45 p. m.

Berlin's population gave the Fuehrer a tremendous send-off. Thousands jammed the Anhalter railway station, which was decked with bunting and greenery.

The city's Italian colony appeared in full force as the ruler of Germany departed to make with Premier Mussolini an inventory of their common alignment confronting Europe's changing political conditions.

"A history-making trip," the newspapers put it, and Berlin's crowds turned out to cheer and wave Italian and Nazi flags along the Fuehrer's route from the chancellery to Anhalter station.

Significant Developments
There have been three significant developments since the Nazi-fascist colleagues met at Munich last Sept. 23, and these may well determine the nature of their future collaboration. Although the German public has been cautioned not to expect any sensational announcements.

First is Fuehrer Hitler's bringing of Austria into greater Germany on March 12, putting German troops at Brenner pass.

Second is Mussolini's official affirmation of his endorsement of Austro-German union, but there have been some unofficial indications of resentment at the nearness of a strong foreign army.

British Pact
Second is Mussolini's entrance into a friendship agreement with Britain on April 18 and French and British speculation that this might be the wedge for efforts by the two democracies to win Mussolini from the German-Italian front. Both Berlin and Rome, however, have affirmed continued strength of their accord.

Third reached last Thursday by the British and French prime ministers for increased cooperation by their armed forces, in the event of war under a unified command.

The visit to Italy will be cloaked in splendor, and outwardly will make up of the delegation accompanying the Fuehrer indicated the visit would be more than purely "representative."

Rome (AP)—Troop trains rolled into Rome hour upon hour today to bring German soldiers to be on hand for the visit of Germany's Reichsfuehrer Hitler.

There was everywhere the turmoil of last-minute preparation to make the welcome to the Nazi chieftain tomorrow night the greatest pageant in the ancient city's history.

Parks were closed to the public and converted into military camps. Merchants refused deliveries because their trucks could not move through downtown streets choked by soldiers, detectives and tourists.

Persons of questionable record were jailed or ordered from Rome, Florence and Naples during Hitler's six-day stay, and unofficial estimates fixed the number involved at between 6,000 and 7,000.

Soldiers stopped automobiles entering or leaving Rome and checked identification papers. Police doubled their regular guard along

Czechoslovakian Nazi Leader Asks Plebiscite Among Germans in Nation

Henlein and Followers Renew Their Demands For Concessions

Praha, Czechoslovakia.—(AP)—The Nazi leader Konrad Henlein has demanded a plebiscite so that the 3,500,000 German residents of Czechoslovakia may determine their wishes for government.

Using May day as a springboard, Henlein and his colleagues renewed their demands for political concessions in a burst of oratory in towns through the German sector of the nation.

There was only one report of disorder, at Troppau near the frontier with Germany, where three men were injured in fighting.

Anti-Nazi Germans tried with promises to support the Czechs in defense of the nation to offset the demonstrations, which have increased in intensity since the German annexation of Austria.

At Podmokly, another town near the German border, Major Josef Kessler, a social democrat—asserted that "German democrats in the border region will defend the state, together with the Czechs, with their blood."

Given Nazi Salutes
Henlein, speaking in five towns, was welcomed with cries of "we greet our fuhrer" and Nazi salutes. He was, however, less fiery than some of his lieutenants, such as George Wollner, who declared that "National socialism knows no boundaries" and demanded that Germans be substituted for Czechs on the police force.

Another Nazi speaker, Franz Oberlik, said at Gablonz that the Nazis hoped "by next fall we shall have achieved our freedom." Both Oberlik and Wollner are deputies.

Henlein, demanding plebiscite on the minority issue, said demands he made a week ago represented "not the maximum but the minimum of what is necessary to solve our national problems."

The demands, made at a congress of the Sudeten German party, included revision of the nation's foreign policy and self-government with Nazi principles for the German minority.

The Nazi leader warned other nations not to support the Czechs, such support could lead only to conflict.

Usual Parades

May day passed off without untoward events in world cities where communists, socialists and other left wingers celebrated with customary parades, speech-making and labor demonstrations.

Moscow had its usual display of military force, parading before Lenin's tomb and the tomb of Lenin. About 100,000 persons marched in leftist Mexico's demonstration, which assumed a distinctly military tone.

There was a fist fight in Buenos Aires, caused by a clash between Spanish insurgent and government sympathizers.

In London, thousands of extra police prevented conflict between laborites and fascists in the largest May day manifestations the city ever has known.

Italy received this Tyrol region from Austria as part of World war spoils. Otherwise it would have become German when Hitler annexed the rest of Austria on March 12.

There will begin tomorrow the main conferences designed to show that Rome and Berlin still are good friends, despite the annexation and the new Italian accord with Great Britain.

There will, however, be an atmosphere somewhat different from that prevailing when Hitler received Mussolini in Munich last Sept. 25.

Italians, some of them in official circles, have expressed resentment that nazification of Austria brought German troops to Brenner pass, Italy's historic mountain gateway on the north.

There have been a few demonstrations of sentiment in theaters, showing newsreels of the event, and also by university students.

Christian Social Order Sought at Catholic Confab

More Than 2,500 Persons Attending Conference In Milwaukee

Milwaukee.—(AP)—The National Catholic Social Action conference called by Archbishop Samuel A. Stritch of Milwaukee went into its second day today with more than 2,500 persons from all parts of the country on hand to attend sectional and regional meetings.

The conference opened yesterday with the auditorium turned into a huge chapel in which Archbishop Stritch celebrated pontifical high mass before 6,000. The conference seeks to point a way toward Christian solution of economic problems.

Among the speakers Sunday was Msgr. Francis J. Haas, once of Milwaukee, a former member of the Wisconsin Labor Relations board and a member of the original national labor board, who now is dean of the school of social science at Catholic university, Washington, D. C.

For NRA Principles
Msgr. Haas said that in a Christian social order all groups would negotiate wages, hours and output, while the government's function would be to "direct, watch, stimulate and restrain."

In advocating a revival of the principles of NRA, Msgr. Haas said NRA was based on the idea of the Christian order but that it collapsed because "labor had little to say in making any of the codes and very little in administering them."

He defended the theory as right, and said that if labor had had an equal voice with management, "NRA still would be here, teaching us year by year how to evolve a sane social order and even a Christian social order."

Dr. Paul Kienry, Chicago, dean of Loyola university graduate school, asserted the annual national income should be 90 billions of dollars or more, and that labor should have a greater share in ownership and management.

Quotes Pope Pius
The Rev. Raymond A. McGowan, of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, Washington, D. C., quoted Pope Pius XI's "Reconstruction of the Social Order" to define the government's role. It was, he said, to regulate working conditions, make a living wage possible, "control free competition," to preserve a "just freedom," promote international economic operation, and "own those things which would let the private owners dominate the community."

In his sermon on "Religion and Economic Life," Archbishop Stritch declared the church holds the means of curing troubles afflicting society.

"Unfortunately," he said, "men lend an ear to the prophets of pretentiousness and are deceived by strange theories. The church leaves to the state, economic and others the purely economic field and reserves to herself the right directly to teach only in the field of the economic-moral."

The archbishop read a cablegram bearing the apostolic blessing and commendation on the Social Action Conference.

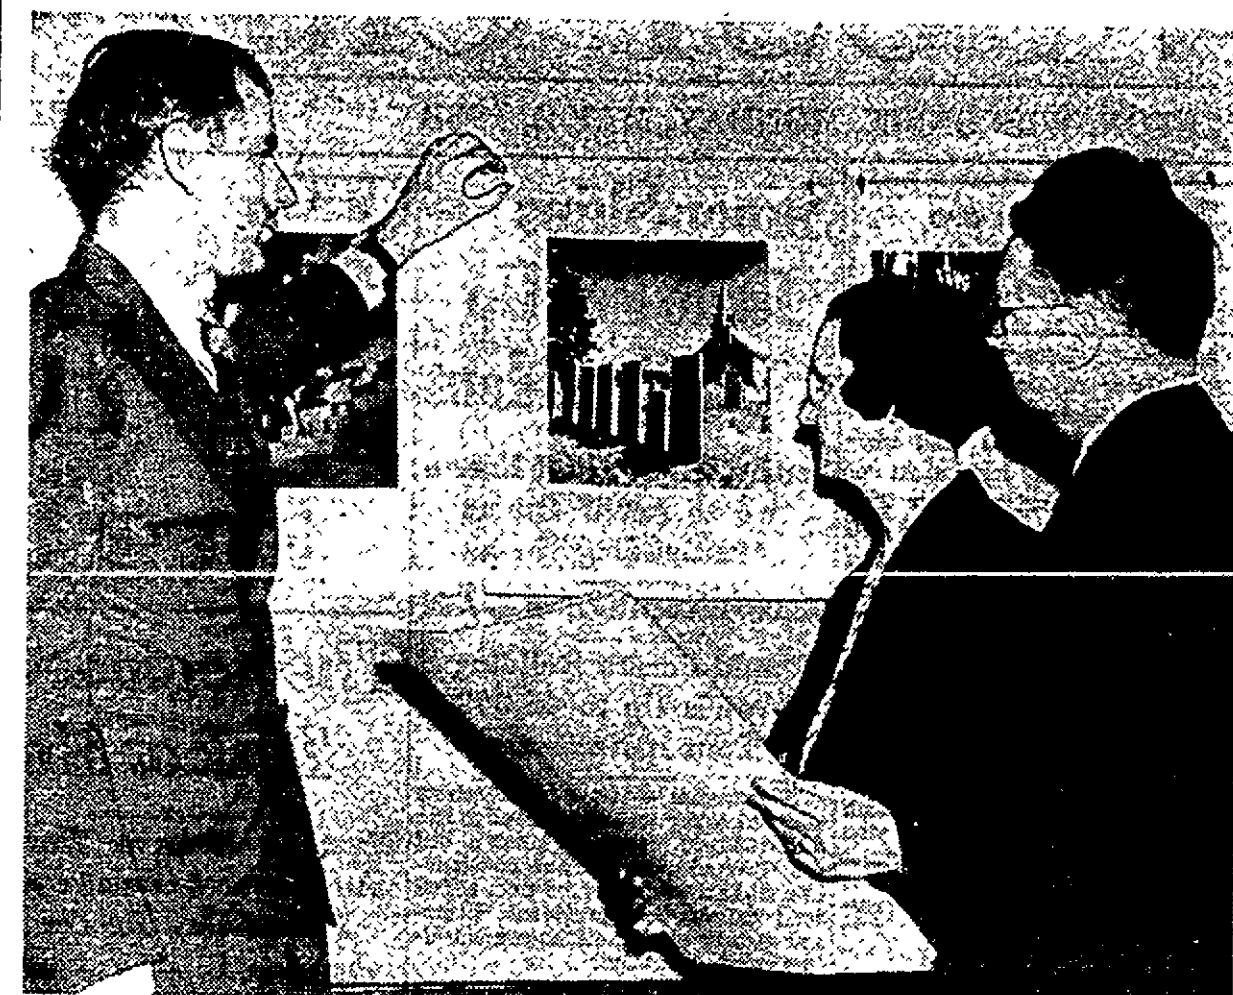

still is well between Europe's leading fascist states.

The assist party secretary, Lieutenant General Achille Starace, and a group of black shirt officials are to meet the Hitler party at Brenner. From there on Hitler will be the guest of Mussolini and King Vittorio Emanuele.

The Hitler train will pull into the new Ostiense station, built specifically for the welcome, shortly after dusk tomorrow.

There will be a fanfare of trumpets as the fuhrer steps from the train, another as he enters the station, and a third as the procession moves away.

The three principals, the king, the fuhrer and the duke, will ride in a single automobile through the streets splashed with the Nazi swastika and the Italian tricolor, and along a route lined by 100,000 troops and probably a half million civilians.

Expect New Party To Set Up Three Regional Offices

Governor LaFollette Will Take Part in Campaign in Iowa

St. Paul.—(AP)—Governor LaFollette of Wisconsin served notice today that his National Progressive "third party" intends to organize in Minnesota by filing of the circle and cross insignia with Secretary of State Mike Holm. A certificate permitting use of the insignia was promptly issued by Holm.

Madison.—(AP)—Sources close to Governor LaFollette indicated today three regional offices are expected to be established by the National Progressives of America.

Offices are expected to be opened in the east, presumably New York, in the middle west, and in the far west. The midwest office it is believed, will be located in Chicago. Present plans call for their establishment about June. Party representatives are seeking suitable accommodations here for the national headquarters of the new party.

Cedar Rapids, Iowa.—(AP)—Governor Philip LaFollette of Wisconsin yesterday said he expects personally to campaign in Iowa this year for National Progressive party congressional and state ticket candidates.

The governor returned to Madison, Wis., today after two days of speeches and conferences with liberal leaders on the question of organizing his new-born national party in the Tall Corn state.

"From expressions of people I have talked with, it seems reasonably clear that there will be a National Progressive ticket in Iowa in 1938," he said.

LaFollette added that any ticket tinkering with the present Farmer-Labor state ticket would be a question for Iowans to decide.

"The progressive party is not promoting candidates," he commented.

HOOPER'S COMMENT
Salt Lake City.—(AP)—Herbert Hoover, in a between trains interview, said yesterday Governor Philip LaFollette's proposed third party may be the wedge for returning the Republican party to power.

The former president is enroute to Oklahoma City and Chicago. "If the Republicans continue to stand together as they have recently, and the liberal and conservative Democrats continue to widen the breach between them as they have recently, we should be able to regain leadership," he said.

Hoover said he planned to speak at Oklahoma's "grass root" convention May 5 on "The Dangerous Road for Democracy," a topic based on his recent trip to Europe.

Greendale Tenants Cheered By End of Drivers' Walkout

Milwaukee.—(AP)—New tenants of Greendale, the federal government's model village southwest of Milwaukee, were cheered today by settlement of a truck drivers' strike which cut down the anticipated heavy weekend arrivals to a standstill.

A handful of "first families" had moved their household goods in their own automobiles and trailers. Not all the finishing touches have been put on the project. The new tenants have no grocery, movie house, tavern nor department store. All are to be established during the summer and fall. The "pioneers" must journey to Hales Corners, two miles away.

Several public buildings will not be ready until autumn, when a school with accommodations for 650 will be opened. Children of the first families will continue in their present schools.

When fully occupied—and the waiting list far exceeds the available space—Greendale will have 572 families.

Many new gadgets are incorporated in the model city. City street lights are controlled by an "electric eye" which automatically turns them on when daylight fades.

There are 325 buildings, including many individual homes, along with apartment buildings and row-type houses. Each home has 5,000 square feet of lawn space.

Drive Against Smugglers Trebles Narcotics Price

(Editor's note: An amazingly far-flung array of highly trained men and women are participating in the United States treasury department's international campaign against its most vicious enemy—the narcotics smuggler. The new setup, its ramifications, operation and results are explained in the following article.)

San Francisco.—(AP)—A worldwide drive against smugglers of narcotics has resulted in the seizure of contraband valued up to $1,000,000 on the Pacific slope alone, it was learned on indisputable authority here today, and has more than trebled the price.

Eight major shore-side raids alone, including the frustration of a daring attempt to smuggle 61 lbs of opium, worth $40,000, from the navy transport Chaumont a month ago, have netted narcotics for which addicts would have paid more than $500,000.

The major hauls, and there were countless others away from the waterfronts, have captured 317 tons (132 pounds) of smoking opium, 32 pounds of morphine, and 54 pounds of heroin.

Price Skyrockets
Opium is so rare it has jumped from $80 to $250 "wholesale" for a five-lb. (6.23 ounce) tin; morphine has skyrocketed from $50 to $160 an ounce and heroin is scarcely available.

Narcotics are smuggled in double-lined oil cans, in innocent looking containers labelled everything from "ties" to "toys." The Chaumont's mail clerk was caught with 40 lbs in a mail pouch as he went into a cafe to deliver his cargo. Another 41 tins were found on the vessel in a pouch not commingled with mail that was subject to customs inspection.

The endless drama of the internationally coordinated effort, carried forward by "career" men and women in the United States government service, is without parallel and federal men declare they are confident that narcotics smuggling is on the wane.

There was no hallyloo 22 months ago when a new setup was formed by the United States treasury department for its concerted campaign.

Under the new program, the customs agency service is directly in charge of anti-smuggling work on the waterfront and has on call the entire resources of the treasury department—customs bureau, federal bureau of narcotics, coastguard, secret service, intelligence unit of the bureau of internal revenue, and the alcohol tax unit.

Customs agency service western offices operate at Seattle, Portland, San Francisco, Los Angeles, San Diego, Honolulu—and at Shanghai, Hong Kong and Kobe are "treasury attaches" combing the Orient for "leads."

Twice a year customs agency service officers qualify not use a revolver. Sometimes they are truck drivers, sometimes ragged "bums" then again they dress in top hat and tails—solely to add to the "black book" listing persons convicted or even suspected of smuggling.

Finding the actual consignee is the major problem of the customs agency service's 75 men and women roving the west coast.

Exhibit of Year's Best Photographs Opening Tuesday

United States Camera Salon at Lawrence Library for Week

The United States Camera Salon, a collection of more than 100 of the best pictures taken by amateur and professional photographers during 1937, opens tomorrow in the lobby of Lawrence college library.

The display, sponsored by the Appleton Camera club as one of its most important projects, will cover every phase of photography—portraiture, miniature camera work, scientific studies, illustration, and news photos.

Horace Bristol's picture of lilies in an ash can, Robert Imand's two stills, one of a churchyard and the other of a Bible, flowers and Venetian blinds, Fred Lerner's yawning baby, and Otto Rothschild's elephant heads and parachute jumper are a few of the many extraordinary and technically excellent prints included in the exhibit.

The pictures have been shown in principal cities of the United States since last November.

Among exhibitors are names familiar to camera "fans"—names like Alfred Eisenstaedt, Arnold Genthe, Arthur Rothstein, Robert Wallace, William Rittsch, Bernice Abbott, Will Connell, George Platt Lynes, Cecil Beaton, Horace Bristol, Willard Van Dyke, William F. Winter, and Imogen Cunningham.

Thousands Submitted
Genthe and Connell were two of the group of outstanding United States photographers who selected the pictures to appear in the exhibit. Other judges were Edward Steichen, Anton Bruhl, Paul Outerbridge, Lejaren A. Hiller, Charles Sheeler, Dr. Agha, James Doolittle and George Hurrell. These men examined thousands of prints submitted from all parts of the nation in assembling the collection which will be open for public inspection at Lawrence library tomorrow.

At its Radio City showing in New York city, the exhibit attracted more than 50,000 visitors in two weeks time. A total of 104 prints, all on 16 by 20 paper mounts, make up the collection.

Following are sketches of a few of the photographers and prints which the U. S. Camera Salon will present.

Miss Marvin Brockneridge, a debutante turned professional photographer, she has produced impressive western pictures, one of a western corral and another of a herd of cattle being driven along the water edge will be in the exhibit.

Charles S. Foster and Arthur W. Fuchs. They are represented in the scientific section with startling photographs of layers of worms and stingers of bees, and radiographs of the entire arterial circulation of man.

Carl Bozler. Gives an excellent portrait of an old woman sitting on her door stoop, a study that has calm and dignity and is unsurpassed for sharp, clear outlines.

Arthur Rathstein. Official photographer for the Rural Resettlement administration, he has three pictures in the exhibit, one of a mother and children in the doorway of their new dwelling, another of a dust storm, and a magnificent print entitled "Drought."

Strive in Vain to Lure Chimpanzee Down From Steeple

Ansonia, Conn.—(AP)—A 30-pound chimpanzee that had escaped from its cage at an exposition here went to church yesterday but, instead of joining the congregation, indulged in acrobatics on the steeple, and remained there today.

Police said the steeple at the Church of the Assumption was so lofty that they had no recourse but to wait for the animal to come down.

The chimpanzee escaped when the exposition ended Saturday night. Its keeper, Cole Smith of Frank Buck's jungle farm at Amityville, L. I., N. Y., warned that the 6-year-old animal was inclined to be vicious and was liable to attack if molested.

While several hundred persons watched yesterday, a crew from a carnival that opened a week's stand here made an unsuccessful attempt to lure the simian from its perch.

Re-Alignments Caused by New Party Important, Political Leaders Say

The new National Progressive party, organized at Madison Thursday night under the guidance of Governor Philip F. LaFollette, will not be a serious threat in the 1940 presidential election except as its re-alignments affect the Republican and Democratic votes.

—So went the majority of opinions expressed by political leaders here today.

There was considerable diversity of views on whether the LaFollette used good judgment in their "timing" of the party's birth, but the belief that the movement is highly significant was general.

Following are comments made by men questioned on the National Progressive party's implication and outlook:

George E. Sokolsky, New York, widely known newspaper writer, lecturer, and commentator, who spoke at the Appleton Chamber of Commerce annual meeting Friday night: "I'm surprised that LaFollette sprung it as early as he did. In fact, I'm sorry, for I think it's too early.... The party won't bring in the conservatives of the Democratic party. And if a man is looking for hope of the future, I don't believe he'll find it there."

Senator Mike Mack, Sh. Republican: "I don't believe so. I think it's inevitable that this party will be permanent. It will run a presidential campaign in 1940. Labor still is stork the New Deal and I don't LaFollette will try to buck Anton Miller, chairman of Outagamie county Farmer-Progressive group: "Now is the time to start a third party movement. If one is ever started, I believe a third party will be permanent. It will work to be done but the new party will make a good run in 1940."

Seymour Gmeiner, preside the school board: "From the point of a Republican I would LaFollette's timing was poor. Even if organization of the party goes at top speed it can't elect a presidential candidate in 1940 because party alignment not broken as fast as that."

Sees Aid For G. O. P.
Orville Hegner, Eighth d chairman of the Republican "The movement of the LaFo in launching a third party see be the first step in the re-align of party beliefs. It will make affect the Democrats in dri from the liberal support of I veit and should result in the tion of a Republican preside 1940."

Carl Smith, president of the Icton Trades and Labor co. "The time is ripe for the new ment of the Progressives' tionaries but it is rather doubtful the new group can put a sufl presidential candidate by That is, unless there is a com able collapse in the economic tem of the country before time."

Island 'Empress' Is Dead, Captain Of Schooner Tells

Gloucester, Mass.—(AP)—Ca Irving Johnson, adventurous r of the schooner Yankee, said he was convinced the Baroness Wagner, who several years proclaimed herself "empress" of the island, had died.

The master of the 92-foot Ya which completed an 18-month 600-mile world cruise yesterday, said the Baroness had several socially prominent pe said he could not locate the bss or anyone who knew any about her on the island.

"We landed there in Jan 1937," the captain said, "but I find any trace of the barones couldn't learn much, although talked with a family named mper, including a man and wife their two children. We shared supplies with them."

The barones, with Robert Jipson and Almed Rudolph, Lo said to be Germans, set up her "pire" on the island in the sur of 1933. Several months later woman, who said she was Vienna, vanished and nothing been heard from either her or Jipson since.

And So Maybe Max Would Have to Wait Some More

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York.—It is a little too early, but every day I turn to the sport page expecting to read that Joe Louis, the heavyweight champion of the world, has broken a hand in a training contest, necessitating the postponement of his fight with Max Schmeling, the hero of the Hitler youth. This really cannot be expected to happen until about the first or second week in June, as the date set for the struggle is June 22.

After that Louis would need two months for mending, for this would be a very serious fracture and his recovery would bring us deep into the month of August. And after that, according to tradition, the champion would be entitled to a tune-up contest in which to test whether the injury had healed sufficiently to permit him to do himself justice in a contest involving the highest bauble in fistiana's realm. Training for the tune-up contest would require four weeks, thus throwing the tune-up bout back to the middle of September. And then, in simple justice, Louis would need two weeks' rest before going into training again for the meeting with Schmeling, which would take four weeks more.

That would defer the championship fight until November, which is football season and no time of the year for the presentation of an outdoor prize fight, as every practical sportsman knows. So the hero of the Hitler youth would have to be chivalrous and bide his time until the summer of next year.

There might be some who would doubt the genuineness of a broken hand in view of the fact that Schmeling knocked out Louis the last time. But the injury could be substantiated by x-ray photographs, of which there is a large file available in the hospital libraries at all times. In fact, a broken hand could be authenticated by an x-ray photograph right now, and a fracture would be consistent with the best traditions of pugilism. The Nazis, of course, would regard this as a dirty trick, but pugilism is very much like nazism, and it may be laid down that there is no trick so dirty but that a Nazi would play it on the other party if he had a chance.

Moreover, Schmeling himself has set precedents which would justify the fracture of one of Louis' hands. Schmeling has done

Some Ducking Himself. Soon after Schmeling came to this country he was matched to fight a slashing tiger named Whooops O'Malley in Boston. Mr. O'Malley was called Whooops because of his rather pronounced development of his left brislet and the customers would emit falsetto cries of "whooops" whenever an opponent stuck him there. He was stout and pugnacious, however, and Mr. Schmeling developed some diplomatic equivalent of the broken hand, declining to have traffic with him.

Later on Schmeling won the bauble, as it is called by a special favor of Jim Farley and the New York prize fight commission, which declared the bauble to be at stake in his contest with Jack Sharkey when obviously it was not. He promised to give Sharkey a return match as a return favor to Mr. Farley and the commission, but returned to Germany, and the next year fought Willie Stribling instead. He knew he could beat Stribling, but he had doubts about Sharkey, because Sharkey had been striking him with furious lefts and rights to the face and body, as the saying goes, when he won their previous match, and the bauble, on a foul.

He also postponed and eventually completely avoided Primo Carnera, who looked rather difficult at that stage, and when he was ultimately crowded into a ring with Sharkey for his long-deferred return match he lost the bauble.

So a fracture or a run-around of some kind seems imperative in the case of the proposed Louis-Schmeling fight if the finest traditions of pugilism and nazism are not to be lowered into the dust and Schmeling's own precedents are to be respected.

Fight Commission Has Been Dictator Pattern

The prize fight commission, which was a pattern for the Nazi dictatorship long before Hitler rose to power, might reasonably forbid the fight on political grounds, having stopped one some years ago on social grounds. That was a rank case of class discrimination in which Enzi Fiermonte, the step father of John Jacob Astor, was refused permission to fight Slapsie Maxie Rosenbloom for the light-heavyweight bauble. Determined to keep the grand old game democratic, the commissioners ruled that this step-father of John Jacob Astor ever should have a chance to win the second highest bauble in the realm.

The beautiful fascist thus was forced to make his living by other talents, which he was able to do, being a versatile athlete, although he used to mope around the office of his manager, Mr. James J. Johnston, saying, "I wanna earn my leeving fighting. There is a helova way to earn my leeving."

As the hero of the Nazi youth, Schmeling should be treated according to his own precedents and an adoption of David Harum's version of the golden rule. "Do unto a Nazi as he would do unto you and do it fast."

Board May Change Salary of Officer At First Meeting

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau. Madison.—The salary of an elective county officer may not be changed during his term of office, but the county board may at its organization meeting in May change the salary of an officer whose term begins the following January. Attorney General Orland S. Loomis today advised District Attorney Clarence J. Dorschel of Brown county.

At its May meeting the county board may also increase the number of days allowed for committee meetings and exercise all powers which may be exercised at the annual meeting, Loomis wrote Dorschel.

"We believe that the county board may at its organization meeting increase the number of days for which compensation and mileage may be paid to committee members. However, in case of counties having more than 25,000 population, the number of days of service on one or more committees is limited to thirty under the statutes," Loomis' opinion said.

Mrs. Glander was injured when the car in which she was riding driven by her husband, and another driven by Clarence Greiner, 32, 524 E. Randall street, collided about 11:20 Saturday night, according to police. The Glander machine was going west on College avenue and the Greiner car north on Memorial drive when the collision occurred. Both cars were damaged. Mrs. Glander was taken to St. Elizabeth hospital.

Car Demolished

Henke escaped with a minor cut on his face but the car he was driving was demolished when it struck the curb at the south approach to Memorial drive bridge about 12:50 yesterday morning, careened across the roadway, struck a pillar of the bridge and then rolled over, according to a police report. The motorist was treated at St. Elizabeth hospital. Henke was driving north when the accident occurred.

Wendorff and Casey were injured when a car driven by Harold Hilbrandt, 28, 903 Oviatt street, Kaukauna, went off Highway 41 at Sun Junction on the north side of Kaukauna about 1:30 this morning. The group was returning to Kaukauna from the Nitegale ballroom when it was reported, the driver was blinded by another car's lights and skidded into the ditch after hitting a soft shoulder on the highway. The car was damaged.

Doty avenue, Neenah, crashed into a telephone pole, breaking it off at its base, when the car left the road on a curve on Highway 50 near Oak Hill cemetery, Neenah, at 1:30 this morning. A woman who was a passenger in the car suffered a cut above the right eye. William Schell, Third street, Neenah, also was in the car. Smith told Wisconsin county officials he was blinded by lights of an approaching car.

Occupants of a car driven by Wilfred Smith, 19, route 2, Kaukauna, were shaken up when Smith lost control of the machine and it went off Highway 47 two miles north of Mackville about midnight Sunday and turned over. Passengers in the car were Miss Ann Smith, a sister of the driver, 927 N. Lawe street, Appleton; Eugene Weber, 19, 927 N. Lawe street, Appleton; and Alyce Weber, 20, 927 N. Lawe street.

The front ends of cars driven by Frank Finger, route 2, New London, and Abe Belling, route 3, Appleton, were damaged in a collision about 3:50 yesterday afternoon. Finger was going east on Wisconsin avenue and Belling south on Mason street when the machines crashed.

Parade Highlight Of Jaces' Program For Rural Youths

Motion Pictures, Lunch, Swimming, Games Furnish Entertainment

Motion pictures, lunch, a parade, games and swimming filled a day of entertainment for the 1,245 children attending the Rural Youth Day program sponsored here Saturday by the Appleton Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Rural Youth Day is an annual event sponsored by the Jaces to promote friendship between the city and rural section of the county.

Gathering at 9:30 in the morning the youngsters were shown motion pictures, including a western and several "shorts" at the Rio theater.

At noon they paraded from the theater down College avenue, Memorial drive and Prospect avenue to Pierce park. Each group carried its school or 4-H club banner and the parade even boasted a float entered by the Columbia club. The float was a horse drawn buggy bedecked for the occasion. Schools with the winning banners were Sandy Slope, Highland and Hillsdale. The winning 4-H club were the Wide-Awake-Forward, Columbine and Happy Valley Girls.

Eat Lunch

Arriving at Pierce park the youths each received lunch in individual packages. These included cheese or meat sandwiches and cookies. Milk also was served.

Mayor John Goodland, Jr., welcomed the group to the city to open the afternoon program. A large number of boys swam at the Y. M. C. A. pool from 2 to 3 o'clock and a group of girls from 3 to 3:30.

Those not interested in swimming remained at the park to participate in games and an entertainment program. The Elm Tree 4-H club presented a 1-act play. There was some community singing and Darrell Mueller of the Woodland Mustangs 4-H club, Seymour, entertained with cowboy and other songs. Lois Schreiner of the Pleasant Corners 4-H club gave a tap dance and acrobatic stunts.

26 Democrats in Congress in Final Nomination Bids

Washington—(1)—Twenty-six Democratic members of congress, some for and some against the Roosevelt administration, made last minute appeals to their party members in four states today for renomination in tomorrow's primary elections.

Three senators and 23 representatives sought party support in Indiana, Alabama, South Dakota and Florida. Failure to win would mean they either would have to run as independents in the November elections or relinquish hope of another term.

Republicans will hold primaries at the same time, but only two of their house seats are involved—those to which Representatives Case of South Dakota and Halleck of Indiana seek renomination.

In some districts, the Democratic vote will afford the first test of administration strength since the party's overwhelming victory of 1936. In others, local issues predominate.

Florida Contest

Observers agreed that the Democratic senatorial contest in Florida tomorrow's outstanding race from a national viewpoint.

Senator Pepper, an administration supporter, is seeking renomination against the opposition—among others—of Representative J. Mark Wilcox, a New Deal critic, and former Governor Dave Scholtz, a Roosevelt backer. Pepper has the expressed support of James Roosevelt, the president's son and secretary. Wilcox is out of the running for his present house seat but Florida's other four representatives are up for renomination.

In Alabama, Senator Hill is unopposed for the Democratic nomination to succeed himself. All the state's nine representatives are out for Democratic renomination.

Race in South Dakota

The senatorial race in South Dakota, where Senator Hitchcock is seeking renomination, lured Representative Fred H. Hildebrandt to forsake his house seat for a try at the senate. Hitchcock also is opposed by former Governor Tom Berry. All profess support of the administration.

Sharing Interest with the Democratic race is the Republican contest for the senatorial nomination. There are four candidates, including Governor Leslie Jensen.

In Indiana 10 representatives are in the Democratic primary and one Charles A. Halleck, in the Republican contest. The twelfth Indiana house member, Samuel B. Pettengill, is voluntarily retiring to return to private law practice.

Contests of Indiana's senatorial nominees will be settled at state conventions in June.

Montgomery and Jacksonville produced 88 degrees yesterday, the warmest in the nation, Winemucca, Nev., with freezing weather, was the coldest city.

Potts-Wood Firm Owed $16,800 to Patrons for Milk

Cooperative to Operate as Member of Shawano Organization

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau. Madison—Patrons of the Potts-Wood company, Appleton dairy firm, had approximately $16,873 due them for milk delivered to the plant when the company failed several weeks ago, according to an audit made by the department of markets and sent to the governor's office Saturday.

At the same time the department announced that arrangements have been made for the dairy cooperative which was formed by the plant's patrons to handle the Chicago-inspected milk delivered to the company to operate as a member plant of the Consolidated Dairy Cooperative of Shawano, beginning today.

At present the cooperative is renting the Potts-Wood plant at Appleton, department officers said, but efforts are being made to sell stock in the Badger Cooperative to finance either the construction of an Appleton plant or for the purchase of the Potts-Wood establishment. A decision has not yet been made, it was reported.

Owed Truckers

The state officers' audit also disclosed that the Appleton firm was owing truckers a substantial amount for hauling milk from farms to the plant.

When the company closed its doors, many of its patrons had not cashed their milk checks for the previous months or for several months, it was pointed out by W. L. Witte, marketing chief of the state department of agriculture. As a result the company's indebtedness to its patrons covered not only the amount of milk delivered during the last month's operations but for other milk delivered during several previous months.

This was brought about because some of the farmers had been saving their pay checks during the late winter months to pay for seed, feed and fertilizer orders, Witte said.

A proposal to establish a system of compulsory bonding for all dairy receiving plants, advanced by W. C. Sullivan of Kaukauna and a group of farmers involved in the Wisconsin dairyway's suspension, cannot be ordered under present state laws, according to state agricultural officials. A bill to provide such surety was defeated in the 1935 legislature, they recalled.

and Mrs. Herman Wagner, Wausau; one grandchild.

PANNECK Chiropractic Clinic

People are so busy in this mad rush for fame and fortune, they do not live natural lives. Necessity is the mother of invention because of the strain and tension of modern life, the spine is subject to strains and jolts, this in turn brings on abnormalities and creates parts of the body. Chiropractic is a natural science working in harmony with nature to correct conditions in the spine. Are you really as well as you were this time last year? Do you have the energy you used to have? Or do you find your daily work an effort that exhausts you? If you are run down as the saying goes, your nerves have become tensed, your spine is improperly aligned, and you are no longer getting the abundant flow of life giving energy, nature's most precious gift. That is why Chiropractic is so necessary and beneficial. Young and old, men, women and children, all may take this path to health and happiness. Age is no matter of the Chiropractor. Actually you are as young as you feel.

QUESTION AND ANSWER

Question: Is Chiropractic beneficial in acute diseases like bronchitis, pneumonia and pleurisy? A. W.

Answer: Yes. Splendid results are obtained with such cases. You have mentioned. They respond very rapidly to Chiropractic. After fifteen years of dealing with the sick I am in a position to know. There have passed under my supervision in this Clinic many thousands of sick people, some of whom were given up as hopeless before coming here. This Clinic is premised upon the service of getting sick people well as quickly as possible, thereby reducing the cost of being sick.

A BUREAUCRAT ON HIS THRONE

When congress endowed the Secretary of Agriculture with far-reaching powers in fixing rates for the buying and selling of livestock at various stockyards it put in a provision that his orders were only to be made "upon a full hearing."

That provision differentiated America from well known dictatorships. Hitler may rule by ukase or decree. He signs a document and that ends the matter.

And still it is difficult to prevent a bureaucrat from becoming a dictator despite congressional order that he withhold decisions until people affected may be given a chance to be heard.

The supreme court of the United States has just decided that the orders made by Mr. Wallace in relation to the Kansas City stock yards are wholly invalid because of Mr. Wallace's failure to give the interested parties the "full hearing" required by civilization's first rule.

It appeared in the Kansas City case that about 10,000 pages of testimony were taken and another thousand pages devoted to exhibits. But those affected were unable to find out what charge the government made or what claim would satisfy it. They were moving around as a herd of cattle might over a vast plain covered with fog. Fearful that their rights might be greatly injured by some of the "political cowboys" who were acting for the Secretary of Agriculture, the merchants affected asked for the privilege of examining any proposed conclusions so they might argue the matter intelligently and present their side of the controversy which otherwise was simply a mass of thousands of pages of evidence. But even this slight courtesy was denied them.

When the court looked into the matter it found that the Secretary of Agriculture didn't really make any findings or any conclusions. He accepted what was told him by the political cowboys. The chief justice says: "There was no reasonable opportunity to the respondents to know the claims presented and to contest them." The situation was patterned after that case where a judge left the bench to amuse himself in chambers by reading a novel and after the evidence was all in asked the prosecutor to make a decision for him.

Appropriately the supreme court issued both advice and warning to administrative bodies which are endowed with such extensive power under the prevailing custom:

"If these multiplying agencies deemed to be necessary in our complex society are to serve the purposes for which they are created and endowed with vast powers, they must accredit themselves by acting in accordance with the cherished judicial tradition embodying the basic concepts of fair play."

THE CRY FOR HELP IS ANSWERED

The White House turns toward the country its best smile of confidence as it hopefully spreads before our gaze the signed statement of America's greatest industrial leaders signifying their zealous purpose of cooperation in the effort to get our great machinery back on the rails again so that every man in America may be permitted to earn a full and honest living.

But there are words in the statement signed by the industrial leaders that should transfix the national attention. These bright and burning words are:

"Legislation based upon untried social and economic theories should be avoided."

This statement needs little by way of imagination to take us back to the point where the country might be said to have definitely left the smoking ruins and charred remains of the depression for higher ground and a cleaner atmosphere.

But once apparently out of danger those with authority to direct the destinies of the nation and who temporarily held in their puny hands the happiness of its people, seemed to lose all sense of balance, gurgled with enthusiasm over plans discarded these many generations through experience, and gave little attention to the course we were taking in the difficult endeavor to get back to normalcy.

Whenever anyone presented a theory to these leaders that might produce tears or applause, even though it were only a pious hope, it was not wild enough to escape their fervent attention nor half-baked enough to miss their happy touch and their tumbling crowding words of endearment.

With the country seemingly improving, these leaders appeared to gloat over their miraculous wisdom as folly helped them prepare pitfalls that the nation could not avoid.

And now with disaster in sight again, and more millions of brawny, wholesome, sound Americans on relief, our princely rulers tacitly agree that they will be good and behave themselves if only those whom they have been reviling will come to their aid.

But of course they cannot promise to be perfect. They still pray to wooden gods and devote attention to what they call "principles." The first of these principles is that the way to get more bread is to create less wheat, the way to have rice pudding is not to raise any rice and the sure way for the nation to become wealthy is to throw its wealth away.

SADE UP TO DATE

Alphonse Sade, who dodged up Parisian alleys about 200 years ago describing the exquisite delight to be obtained from slitting throats from ear to ear and thus gave our language the word sadist, would have stood in high favor with the Moscovites had he lived today instead of dying in a lunatic asylum long ago.

Or perhaps Sade lives again in another form and over another name. For Trotsky in his Mexican hideout, and particularly as the evening shadows cast ghosts upon the wall and his memory goes back to the cisterns of blood he spilled when in power, cries out that "The Mink" is in Mexico for the purpose of killing him.

"The Mink" is George Minkoff, carrying a United States passport, driver of a yellow cab in Philadelphia only a few years ago, but with an insatiable desire for blood, and who therefore betook himself, as a good sadist should, to Moscow where there is plenty of work in his line. Only a year ago "The Mink" was reported in Barcelona and anarchist papers, wholly unreliable and yet as reliable as any Red sheet, said he was Stalin's trigger man and dubbed him Assassin Extraordinary. And so "The Mink" has subsequently been traced to New York, then to Galveston and finally to a freighter headed for Mexico. No wonder Trotsky shakes in his boots. Possibly he has read the stories told by returning Americans who fought for Leftist Spain that "The Mink" functioned at Barcelona as a dread killer, particularly adept when a broad back was turned which gave him his favorite target.

And so, as every Mexican breeze rustles through the leaves, as every strange football comes to Trotsky's ears, the Master Assassin screams out his terror for such a one is a Master Coward too.

AMENDING THE WAGNER ACT

Since the American Federation of Labor, through Mr. Padway, its general counsel, has argued before the House Judiciary Committee that the Wagner law must be amended, it will not appear that something sacrilegious is being done if the law is rewritten for the purpose of giving labor every right now secured to it but preventing a few of the most manifest abuses that have risen under the law and some of which Mr. Padway has detailed.

The Wagner law was supported at its inception by some excellent impulses but they were overshadowed by Mussolini Lewis and the $600,000 he brought to bear upon the fortunes of the Democratic treasury. The result was bound to be a monstrosity.

It is as bad in one extreme as Tom Girdler might be expected to write it the other way. It was written primarily to turn the country over to Mr. Lewis and his underlings. Only the quick action of an Ohio governor and some mayors in Michigan cities prevented Mr. Lewis from putting his army of Pennsylvania miners to work in order to break any resistance to his demands.

America needs the Wagner law in the sense of protecting every right of workers, among which is the right to be shielded from a certain class of labor leaders who are inherently of the gangster type.

It is a sorry looking law that gives the worker only a choice between Girdler and Lewis. In either spot workers become mere numbers ordered around by guns, black-jacks and brass knuckles.

A PHENOMENON

"The Black Plague is upon us," said Governor LaFollette in his Iowa address. The expression carries some thoughts that are more appropriate even than the speaker may have intended.

For the Black Plague, sometimes called the Black Death, was the worst plague of all. It depopulated cities. It laid the countryside bare. It led those untouched to believe that it was an instrument of heaven sent to announce judgment day and the ending of the world.

Yet it is now a very well known fact that all these plagues that swept over Europe originated in the East. They were Oriental, as Asiatic as some political nostrums that have been sweeping over the world, making it sick and unhappy.

And it is also soundly established that fear, anxiety, want, poor food and corrupt air produced or propagated these diseases.

Yet this is surely the first time in history that the Abundant Life has turned into the Black Plague.

THE CURSE OF DOODLING

Some people doodle by drawing pictures and designs while talking on the telephone. I do that, too, but I also doodle by writing down numbers. Saturday morning I pulled out the slide in my desk and found some numbers written on a stray sheet of copy paper that have me worried. I can't remember what they were there for. They read: "1! — 4; 1 — 90; 1 — 60."

Doodling is a vicious habit.

WINDOW BOX

Sitting in my window
Is a window box of green,
Flowers of all shades and hues
From the streets are seen.
Passersby say — "How lovely."
The Geraniums say — "Hello!"
As each one reaches forward
In its pink and white glow.

The pink and red begonias,
With heads that bend so low,
Whisper "now it's springtime —
And time for us to grow."
The lazy spring winds blowing
Swaying them to and fro,
And they're nodding to passersby.
On the street below.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

MOVING DAY

It is a wrench for her to move
From this old house she's grown to love.
She planted roses long ago;
She watched the summer come and go.
She made friends with the birds and bees,
And loved the changing maple trees.
The curtains at the windows bear
A testament to loving care.
The walls have heard young laughter ring;
The floors have borne their scampering.
The moving van will take away
The furnishings she owns today,
But in the house she leaves a part
Of her impulsive, yearning heart!

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

NERVOUS

Kindly give me some advice for my nerves, asks a correspondent, as I am just reaching the critical time—the change of life.

Now, madam, you asked for it, remember. First I earnestly advise you to throw out the almanac and the old (quack) doctor book and if possible your treasured collection of morbid notions about "female weakness," "feminine hygiene," the "sickness" concept of menstruation and the "delicate" idea of pregnancy. All that time of hokum is calculated to keep the gullible sex good customers for innumerable lines of nostrums and quackery. It is calculated to appeal to the childish imagination of the woman whose education has been shamefully neglected—the college woman, for instance. I refer of course to physical education and to education concerning sex.

The natural cessation of menstruation, which occurs generally around the age of 48 years—in some cases five years earlier or later—is not a critical, dangerous or serious happening. It accounts for no "change" of life, no particular change of appearance, temperament or behavior or feeling. It certainly causes no disturbance of the nervous system. Today, as education gradually permeates the gullible sex more and more women are learning for themselves, from their own experience, that all I have said is quite true.

So, if the majority of women are in no way upset or "changed" by the menopause (except the loss of fertility or the power to reproduce) the unenlightened minority who still go by the almanac and the testimonial have nothing to worry about as they approach middle age and nothing to be "nervous" about after they get there.

Of course I am aware that many ailments manifest themselves first around middle age—in men and women. I am singularly lacking in sympathy for anybody in any circumstance, but I wouldn't blame a woman for practicing a little nervous imposition at almost any time in her life if she can get away with it and smooth out her path a bit.

The woman who suffers from hot flashes or flushes does well to heed these suggestions:

- (1) If more than 10 per cent overweight, change the diet habit in a moderate degree—particularly taking less refined carbohydrate.
- (2) Favor, high-calcium diet as much as possible—milk, cheese, eggs, greens, peas, beans, carrots, nuts.
- (3) Try supplementing the diet for a month or two or three times a year with additional calcium and vitamin D (which promotes utilization of calcium).
- (4) If the hot flashes are too frequent and to distressing go to your physician for a series of intramuscular injections of ovarian hormone (variously called aminotin, theelin, lutein, progynon).

Recently several women who began taking calcium and vitamin D (for other conditions) reported prompt relief of the hot flashes from which they had been suffering.

No woman who wishes to keep well can afford to ascribe any kind of "nervous" trouble to her age.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Bleeder State

What is the cause of some person's blood not being able to stop running from a cut or bruise? (E. G.)

Answer—Hemophilia or the bleeder state is one cause. That is some deficiency in the fibrin forming function, inherited. Another cause in rare instances today is scurvy, from prolonged lack of vitamin C in the diet—lack of fresh fruits, fresh fruit juices, fresh vegetables or greens. A third cause of delayed clotting and excessive bleeding is shortage of calcium and vitamin D.

Angina Pectoris

Is it possible for a man with angina pectoris (aged 42 years) to be a father? Can you suggest any program or general rules for such a man to follow? (T. J. E.)

Answer—A man with angina pectoris should marry only with the approval of his physician. Many men with angina pectoris have become fathers. I have no particular program. You will find some helpful information and advice in booklets No. 8 "Victuals and Vile" and No. 21 "How to Breathe." For the former send 25 cents coin, for the latter send 20 cents coin. Enclose a three-cent stamped envelope not less than 4 by 6 inches, bearing your address.

Daughter Likes Raw Food

For the past few months my daughter, aged 4½, refuses to eat vegetables in the civilized manner, that is, cooked, but likes string beans, potatoes, turnips, carrots, peas, etc., raw. I have been giving her small amounts. (Mrs. P. K.)

Answer—It is all right if she prefers all vegetables raw; perhaps even better than taking everything cooked.

Your Birthday

"TAURUS"

If May 3 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8:30 to 10:30 a. m.; from 2:30 to 4:30 p. m.; and from 6:30 to 8:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 6:30 to 8:30 a. m.; from 4:30 to 6:30 p. m.; and from 8:30 to 10:30 p. m.

You may discover there is insufficient time this day to accomplish a number of things that ought to be done. Leisurely movements will greatly impede progress, so it might be well not to indulge in them. Hasty answers may convey to the listener erroneous impressions. The presentation of practical ideas is apt to be greatly appreciated, in view of the fact that the ordinary suggestion apparently will be theoretical. Good and bad influences, in all probability, will make it difficult for persons to have their business judgment above reproach or their social suggestions go unchallenged. The desire to dictate what shall and shall not be done, will make many people unpopular this day, so do not be domineering. Married and engaged couples, as well as those who are hoping soon to see their way to become formally betrothed, will discover, if they behave in an undignified manner, that it is a grievous mistake. If a woman and May 3 is your birthday, your eagerness to please others is likely to be well rewarded. Ambition is apt to make you forget how to relax and play, and this, in time, will be bad judgment. To get the most out of life it is important that you devote some time to social activities. You must guard against going to extremes, remembering always that there is a happy medium that

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—One of the things this government does in its spare time is to test out crazy notions, and that is how it discovered that plastering a cud of chewing tobacco on a wound would stop the blood from spurting out.

We haven't as yet persuaded our favorite government bacteriologist to test whether a big swig of raw whisky is good for snake bite. But when Dr. Lazlo Detre, bacteriologist of the bureau of public health, heard of the chewing tobacco remedy he put his test tubes to work on it.

One of Dr. Detre's public health colleagues from down in the tobacco belt is responsible for starting him on the strange chase. The man said that when he was hunting as a boy with his father, their Negro servant cut off two of his fingers while chopping wood for a camp fire. Desperately the boy's father tried to keep the darky from bleeding to death in hook wounds. Best he could do harm and no good at all. Evidently Dr. Detre's southern colleague's father had chewed out all the nicotine.

They took the Negro back to town where a physician roundly scolded everybody for taking such risks with infection. He removed the tobacco and cleaned the wound only to start the bleeding again. The Negro didn't die but neither did the idea that chewing tobacco was good for wounds.

It's The Calcium

Dr. Detre found out why. He used his own blood in the test. It isn't the nicotine. It is some sort of calcium in the tobacco which causes the blood to coagulate, or clot, and seal up the wound. Dr. Detre thought it likely that the nicotine, mixing in the blood that way, might do harm and no good at all. Evidently Dr. Detre's southern colleague's father had chewed out all the nicotine.

If you are going to become heroic and cut off a finger just to try this out, at least follow the approved method. Chewing is not the best way, although Dr. Detre said he had learned that Chesapeake Bay fishermen use a cud to stop bleeding from fish hook wounds. Best way (in case you can't get to a doctor) is to boil some tobacco long enough to stew out the juice and cause the nicotine to evaporate. The "tobacco tea" is better than a cud.

Milk also is good, said Dr. Detre, but "tobacco tea" is 10 times stronger.

Home-Grown Remedies

Dr. Detre says it never pays to scoff at country superstitions. Folk remedies often have sound, practical value. Nevertheless, we should like him to try out his test tubes on value of some of the following:

Carrying a small bag of asafetida on a string around your neck to ward off all manner of illnesses. Packing a bacon rind about your neck to cure sore throat.

Holding your breath while you count nine—to stop hiccoughs.

Holding ice on the back of your neck to stop nosebleed.

Commissions to Reopen Hearings Under New Ruling

Re-Examine Procedure in Light of Chief Justice Hughes' Decision

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—Almost as far-reaching in some of its legal aspects as the famous NRA case of 1935 decided by the supreme court has become, already the opinion handed down by Chief Justice Hughes last week on the subject of administrative law.

Virtually all of the quasi-judicial commissions of the federal government are this week beginning to re-examine their procedure in the light of the chief justice's ruling to see whether they are giving the citizen a full and fair hearing in accordance with the time-honored judicial processes of fairness and equity. Commissions established by state law may also begin to scrutinize their procedure, too.

The National Labor Relations board has responded by action looking toward the reopening of some of its most important cases for four months when they reach the supreme court, they will be thrown out on this recently announced principle. As indicated by this correspondent in the dispatches last week, the labor board has had a rule which permitted it on occasion to transfer a trial examiner's report without giving a hearing to the opposing side or a chance to file exceptions on the contents of such a report.

Black Opposed
To the layman, it may seem as if something technical or rigidly legalistic is involved. But the idea back of the supreme court opinion, which, by the way, had the approval of all the justices who heard the case except one—former Senator Black—is that a trial examiner is really a sort of trial judge or lower court. When he makes his report, the supreme court feels the opposing side should have a chance to read it and file exceptions and re-argue arguments before the report goes higher to the board or commission itself. The situation is tantamount to that which would occur if, after a trial in any lower court, the judge kept his opinion secret and then passed it on to a higher court, where a ruling was issued without giving anybody a chance to file a brief or exceptions to the lower court's decision.

Naturally, the labor board does not want to jeopardize its many important cases which are pending, so it is willing to reopen them to allow examiners' reports to be duly noted and exceptions filed. Whether this will change in these very cases the board's final orders remains to be seen, and it may well be that certain cases will have to be tried over again altogether.

Bitter Complaint
For there is often something more involved than a failure to give out a copy of the examiner's report. Some of the parties to labor board cases have complained bitterly that the examiner was often in cahoots with the prosecuting attorney and that he overruled objections arbitrarily or consented to the issuance of subpoenas in ways that favored the labor board side as against a defendant company.

What has happened is really epochal in the evolution of administrative law in America. Up to now, many of the quasi-judicial commissions, like the Interstate Commerce Commission, for instance, have been fair and really judicial in their handling of cases from the time the trial examiner begins to take testimony till the final ruling is issued. But uniformity of procedure among these commissions has by no means been compelled, even though it has often been advocated by members of the bar.

There is no doubt that these quasi-judicial commissions have come to stay and they are bound, under a system of centralized control of most everything nowadays, to acquire more and more importance. It can readily be seen how vital they are, because these commissions are empowered by congress to report "findings of fact," and their own findings are specifically deemed by the statute to be conclusive "if supported by substantial evidence."

May Include Hearsay
What is a fact? A quasi-judicial commission is not bound by the rules of evidence such as courts require, so a "fact" may be enveloped in hearsay testimony, gossip, anything else which suits a trial examiner to admit into the record. Some of the radicals have for years even under Republican administrations, insisted that the federal commission should have more and more power to determine the "facts" and that the courts, on appeal, should have less and less authority to inquire into the "facts" as a matter of review.

One of the most dangerous things that has grown up is the habit among federal commissions of naming trial examiners from their own employees. These examiners collaborate often with the prosecutors and the citizen goes up against a stacked court frequently when he is confronted with "complaints" issued by the commission in question. Sometimes these commissions have power to put a man out of business or to cause him huge financial losses, so the procedure is no trivial matter.

Students Make Records In School Attendance

Twelve students of the Center Valley school, town of Center, were perfect in attendance during April, according to a report of Miss Cecilia Gieben, teacher. Earl Kettner, Kathleen Roesler, Russell Kettner and Clarence Schraath were neither absent nor tardy during the month at the Pershing school, town of Ellington, according to Miss Frances Krohn, teacher.

Lois Mae and Wilma Young, Joan Konrad, Roman Ritchie and James Young were perfect in attendance at the Coffee Bridge school, town of Deer Creek, according to Miss Marie F. Drisco, teacher.

finding tribunal be an honest one and that the procedure be fair in every sense. It is obviously not fair to have examiners picked by the commissions from their own employees, as is sometimes true, nor is it fair to pick them because of their economic bias, as has often been true of labor board selections.

The critics of the Wagner act have been very aggressive, but they overlooked a simple weakness in the labor board's procedure—that which the supreme court corrected last week by indirection, the ruling having come not in a labor matter at all, but in a proceeding under the Federal Stock Yards act as administered by the secretary of agriculture.

So is administrative law made and so, too, does the supreme court of the United States, by its fidelity to rules of fairness, justify in every respect the confidence imposed in that institution by the American people when, in 1937, they refused to permit that tribunal to be subjected to the will of the executive.

Justice Black did not explain his dissent in this case, but he dissents to everything the administration may be beaten on anyway in the courts, so his dissent is fully in line with the expectations expressed a year ago when he was hailed by the country as lacking a judicial mind and as being primarily a politician and not a justice.

Appleton Retail March Sales Rise Over February's

Statewide Slump Registered in Month From Same Period in 1937

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau
Washington—Whether the state wide slump of 13 per cent in Wisconsin retail sales for March, 1938, as compared with March, 1937, was a real one, or whether the fact that Easter fell in March last year and in April this year softens the statistical blow, is a question the department of commerce leaves to popular judgment.

Only a minor slump of 3 per cent occurred in Madison retail sales for March of this year as compared with last, the smallest reported for any city in the state, according to department of commerce figures. La Crosse showed the second largest decrease in the state of 38 per cent, being second only to Sheboygan which topped the slump-list with 51 per cent decrease in the comparison between these two periods. In the same population class with the previous two, Appleton and Superior recorded the smallest decrease of 12 per cent—this being very close to the average state-wide drop of 13 per cent for the 663 independent stores reporting.

Courage may be taken, however, from the fact that retail sales in cities of every class in Wisconsin showed an average 28 per cent increase for March 1938, as compared with February 1938—or perhaps Easter had something to do with this also, though the department of commerce doesn't say.

Excluding Milwaukee, Oshkosh led the list with a 33 per cent increase for March over February, while La Crosse came second with a 33 per cent increase, and Appleton third with a 31 per cent increase for the same comparative period.

"Cigarettes seem pretty much alike to me. Do you find some difference between Camels and the others, Miss Bourke-White?"

"I've found that Camels are very, very different, Mr. Martin—not just in one way, but in a lot of ways. For example, my nerves must be just as trustworthy as a stepple jack's. Camels don't jangle my nerves. They taste extra-mild and delicate too. Camels never leave an unpleasant after-taste, and they're so gentle to the throat. In fact, Camels agree with me in every way! Leading growers tell their preference in cigarettes — it's Camel!

"We smoke Camels because we know tobacco," tobacco planters say

"I've been planting tobacco for twenty years," says Harry C. King. "Camel bought the choice lots of my last crop—paid more for my best tobacco. So I know they use finer, more expensive tobacco in Camels—a mighty good reason why my cigarette is Camel."

"I'm a tobacco planter," says Verner Hutton, who has grown tobacco 25 years. "The Camel people pay more for our better tobacco. Last crop they took my finest grades. I smoke Camels—I know no substitute for expensive tobacco. Most planters favor Camels."

"It's a fact Camel uses costlier tobaccos," says Floyd Smith, who knows tobacco from the ground up. "Last year I grew a handsome crop. Camel bought up my best leaf tobacco. I smoke Camels—so do most planters hereabouts. I know the quality tobacco in them."

Briton Earning $2,500 Per Year Pays One-Sixth of Income to Government

London—(AP)—Britain's average "Charley Citizen" with a $2,500 a year job in a city office, a wife, two children and a $4,000 suburban home works two months each year for the government.

Professional calculators estimated today that he pays one-sixth of his income in taxes, figuring in recently announced increases in income and other taxes.

For a start the government takes $50 annual income tax. Another $60 based on the "rated" value of his home is assessed.

Local government authorities take about $125 in "rates"—local taxes to maintain police, streets, poorhouses.

On top of that comes the water "rate" averaging $10 annually.

The early morning cup of tea his wife brings him in bed is already taxed like the cigarette he smokes while dressing and the match he uses to light it.

$2.50 For Radio But he has the patriotic satisfaction of knowing that one-fourth of the 48 cents a pound he pays for tea goes partly to buy airplanes, guns and battleships.

At breakfast time the radio music reminds him he pays $250 yearly for the privilege of owning a "wireless" set.

Breakfast itself is a sort of sacrifice, for he is honoring the lord high tax collector.

Burglars Take Loot Valued at $250 at Menasha

Enter Kasel, Luka and Czaplowski Residences Sunday

Menasha—Money, jewelry and watches, valued at more than $250, were stolen by burglars who entered three Menasha homes Sunday evening, according to Police Chief Alex Slomski.

The homes entered were the Frank Kasel residence, 732 Broad street; Joseph Luka residence, 716 Broad street; and the Joseph Czaplowski residence, 673 Appleton street.

The burglary at the Czaplowski residence, where $47 in cash was taken, was not discovered until noon today when Mrs. Czaplowski went to take some money from the purse which was in a dresser drawer. The thief left 50 cents in the purse.

The family was gone for several hours last night, and it is believed, the thief gained entrance with a key.

At the Luka home money, watches, and jewelry stolen were valued at about $200 while no estimate was available as to the size of the loot at the Kasel home although some money and rings were taken.

Drawers in both homes were ransacked and the houses were in disorder when the residents returned. Entrance to the Luka home was gained while the family was at church. A window was pried open, police said. The burglars also forced entry into the Kasel home.

When the Luka family returned from church, they thought they heard the front door slam as they came in the back door but paid no particular attention.

Menasha police were called to investigate.

Spring Bird Migration Reaches Height in May

BY CLARA HUSSONG

So many things are happening in the bird world during the month of May that the bird student can't help wishing that the month had twice as many days so that all the exciting events may be observed and enjoyed.

The spring migration reaches its height during this month, the nesting activities of many of our summer birds are well along the way, and best of all, more bird songs can be heard now than at any other time of the year.

By the end of the month practically every bird we can hope to see has arrived to take up residence, or has passed through in its migratory flight. A number of these birds do not sing until they reach the woodland, swamp or meadow which is the site of their nest. Many others, among them some of our most famous singers, favor us with their best music while they rest and feed near our homes before continuing their journeys.

Listen to Sparrows Each year during the last week or two in April I begin to listen for one of these obliging singers, the white-throated sparrow. I have heard it in the city of Appleton, and I am a lover of seclusion, when it passes through, both spring and fall, it is one of our most sociable species. Many times I have heard it singing from a tree or shrub near the house while I was working in the garden or hanging out the wash.

I heard it for the first time this year on Sunday, April 24, while on a field trip with my local bird club. It was a gray, drizzly day but its clear whistle, coming from a birch-covered hill, was as beautiful as ever. If you are at all musical, and have once learned the song, you will never forget it and you will know why the bird is one of the best-loved of the sparrow tribe.

If you don't know the white-throat, you may consider the song sparrow the sweetest singer in the sparrow tribe. The latter bird's song is more joyous with its varied chirps and trills but the plaintive tone of the white-throat is unforgettably appealing. The white-throat's song begins with a long-drawn-out whistle and ends with a series of triplet notes. The song stops so abruptly that you may think the bird had been interrupted in its song but in a short time you hear it again, and again the sound ceases as suddenly as before.

Description of Call Because the song is so appealing there is hardly a nature writer who hasn't attempted to describe it. One of the best descriptions of it is found in Stewart Edward White's "The Forest." Here are a few lines from his book:

"It is night, very still, very dark. The subdued murmur of the forest ebbs and flows with the voices of the furthest folk, an undertone fearful to break the night calm. Suddenly across the dusk of silence flashes a single thread of silver, vibrating, trembling, with some unpoetic ecstasy of emotions. 'Ah! Poor Canada, Canada, Canada' it mourns passionately, and falls silent. That is all!"

In the phrase describing the song the first two words represent the long-drawn-out whistle, and the three "Canadas" the series of triplet notes. The latter bird's song has been devised to fit the song. A good whistler will find the song easy to imitate.

Most bird books relegate the white-throated sparrow to Canada for the summer months but the bird is not uncommon in lonely forests in northern Wisconsin. Two years ago I heard it singing in the evergreen swamps of the Sheboygan marsh. It was in June, long past the time for migration. It is evident that the bird had taken up residence in that enchanting wilderness.

Made By Wings? From the first of May until the end of the month you can expect to see warblers arriving every day.

Some of this group are poor singers, others live up to their name and are noted for their warbling songs. One of the finest singers among the warblers is the water-thrush, so named because of its thrush-like coloring and because of its love for waterfalls. The ovenbird is another warbler whose song is beloved by those who know it. The yellow, black-throated green, golden-winged, magnolia and chestnut-sided warblers are others in the groups whose songs are pleasing.

This is the time of the year to hear the drumming of the ruffed grouse, or the partridge, as he is more commonly called. Recently, when one member of the group applied to the noise of a gasoline motor, just starting up.

For years the question as to just how the drumming noise was produced was a debated one but now it is generally accepted that the noise is made by the beating of the wings in the air, instead of against a log or against the bird's own breast as was formerly supposed.

WALTER CHRYSLER, JR., AND BRIDE

Kaiser's Grandson Weds Grand Duchess of Russia

Potsdam, Germany.—(AP)—Prince Louis Ferdinand of the house of Hohenzollern and the Grand Duchess Kira of the house of Romanoff were married in civil ceremony in Cecilienhof castle this morning.

The marriage clerk, who ordinarily performs the civil service in Potsdam city hall, came to the castle and the first service was read in the castle library at 11 a. m. The Crown Prince, Wilhelm of Prussia, the bridegroom's father, and the Grand Duke Cyril, father of the bride and pretender to the lost throne of old Russia, were the only witnesses.

The marriage clerk had donned a Prince Albert coat and high hat. The crown prince wore the picturesque deaths' head Hussar uniform, and the grand duke wore evening dress with his decorations.

Then followed a wedding ceremony in the Greek Orthodox religion of the bride. An altar had been erected in a spacious bay window of the great hall of the castle. A Russian chorus of 16 voices sang from an alcove to the left of the altar.

The bride wore a gown of richly embroidered silver brocade, nearly 100 years old—a court dress of her grandmother, the duchess of Coburg, only daughter of Emperor Alexander II.

Wedding Ceremony Provost Paul Adamantoss of Wiesbaden, assisted by two priests and five others in clerical robes, performed the rites with the choir chanting responses.

The bride and bridegroom held burning white candles adorned with white ribbons during part of the ceremony and made their vows with very audible "Amen's." The wedding guests noted that the crown prince was the first to step across a band before the altar, meaning, according to the old belief, that he would be the boss of the matrimonial establishment.

When the second ceremony was ended, the Rev. Bruno Doehring, who will perform a third ceremony at Doorn, the Netherlands, Wednesday, spoke a word of blessing. The Doorn ceremony will be Lutheran.

The guests included 61 men and women of royal blood besides the bridal pair and their parents; 26 counts and countesses, noblemen and noble ladies, and 11 commoners.

What's New at the Library

In spite of the intervening years, the seige of the "lost battalion" in the World war, still remains one of the supreme examples of American heroism. Thomas M. Johnson, an ex-war correspondent, and Fletcher Pratt, an historian who has specialized in military history, have joined forces to give us an authentic account of this famous incident in "The Lost Battalion," one of the new books at Appleton Public Library. Every available record has been examined and analyzed, military dispatches from official files, letters, etc., have been scrutinized and even the German official sources have been compared with the American to give a true picture of what actually happened to this battalion. Originally a New York City unit, it contained many replacements from the midwest as well as other sections of the country, representative of the American army.

A wartime ace and expert flyer, Assen Jordanoff, who has the knack of imparting his own knowledge in a simple and graphic manner, is the author of the book, "Your Wings." He makes clear to the reader the basic principles of flight and takes one through a comprehensive course in flying instruction from the first flight to blind flying and advanced acrobatics.

A New York newspaper reporter, still in his twenties, who once interviewed a champion blood donor in the morning, the keeper of a cemetery for beasts in the afternoon and a roomful of marijuana smokers at night, tells of some of his experiences in a new book entitled "My Ears Are Bent" by Joseph Mitchell.

"Flying the States with the Flying Family" is the title of a book by Lieutenant Colonel George R. Hutchinson who with his wife and two daughters covered the 48 states in their airplane which is their "home in the sky," on a good will tour in the interest of furthering aviation. He has been a transport pilot but finds his real adventure flying with his family who have appeared on national radio program and have given stage appearances.

Frank Buck, the "bring 'em back alive" man has written one of the best books for boys and girls on the mysteries of the tropical forest and the habits of the wild animals, namely, "On Jungle Trails."

Another of the self-improvement books to reach the shelves of the library is "Popularization" by Regina Wesscott Wieman. It is written by a teacher of psychology, sociology and education, a former college dean of women and a consulting psychologist and lecturer.

"New Hampshire Beautiful" by Wallace Nutting describes the picturesque White Mountains, the majestic rivers and the shores where the Atlantic tumbles at the rocks and sands of Portsmouth. It is illustrated with photographs and drawings by the author.

An account of the topical, esthetic and technical development of painting throughout six centuries, with a profusion of reproductions arranged century by century, is given in "Six Centuries of Fine Prints" by Carl Zigrosser. It permits the reader to discover for himself in the graphic medium what the author is driving at.

The history of motion pictures, how talkies are made and how to appreciate them are presented in "Talking Pictures" by Barrett C. Kieseling.

"Photography" by C. E. Kenneth Mees relates the history of photography from the art of the old-time professional with his tent and pack to the modern amateur who carried his camera in his pocket. Written in non-technical language, it shows the industry at work in laboratories, manufacturing plants, dark rooms and Hollywood studios.

Beginning today, the public library is inaugurating a new system of checking out books. Instead of marking the date the book is drawn, the date it is due will be marked on the card, thus making it unnecessary for the borrower to figure out the due date himself.

The Boxwood Barrier
By BLANCHE SMITH FERGUSON

The Story So Far: Judith Goodloe marries self-made Reuben Oliver for his money, only to discover he is bankrupt. After their twins are born, red-headed Cissy Rogers, who loves Reuben, gets him a job in a lumber camp managed by Gary Brent--the man Judith loves. Always a fighter, living by Judith's codes has weakened Reuben. Now, after a violent quarrel with Judith, he decides to make his own laws, and it is war to the knife with Gary. Cissy, on a visit, shocks Judith with the news that Gary may lose his job.

Chapter 56
Cissy Declares War

ALBREATH has been losing money and men during the two years Gary has managed things," Cissy continued. "Now he's looking for a real timberman. A picturesque Robin Hood looking wise, but acting dumb is all right--up to a point."

For an instant Judith was too outraged to speak. Then: "You don't like Gary as much as you used to?" sweetly.

"Equally as well," coolly. "I don't love him--there's a difference."

Judith had a desire to slap Cissy. "Does he know he's to be let down?"

Cissy shrugged. "He spends so little time on the work, I doubt if he does." Outlining her lips with geranium red she watched Judith's dark face in the mirror. When she had studied it a long moment she said: "It's an ill wind that blows no good. It means a chance for Reuben."

"Reuben?"

"To become superintendent. Why--what's the matter?" Cissy swung around and faced her hostess. "You look stricken instead of tickled to death."

"Should I look--tickled?"

"Shouldn't you? It's your husband's big chance."

"You think he should elevate himself at a friend's expense?"

"I wouldn't call Gary Reuben's friend--exactly."

"Reuben owes Gary his job."

"I asked for it," Cissy reminded her.

It was not a pleasant remembrance, Judith hurried on: "He let us have this cabin--"

"Think he did that for Reuben? He did that for you."

"Suppose he did? I've known Gary all my life. Do you think Reuben should repay a kindness--"

"Piffle! Is it a kindness to exact an exorbitant rent which Gary probably puts in his own pocket--"

"Cissy!" furiously.

"I can't swear to it of course," coolly.

"I can swear he doesn't. Gary is a gentleman."

"How you love to fool yourself with high sounding phrases, Judith! Why not come clean? You love Gary and you don't love Reuben."

Cissy's statement crashed like a cymbal against Judith's eardrums. The scant space between them vibrated to it.

"Cissy!"

"Maybe you can fool Reuben, the blind bat. I'm not so sure--any more."

"I've never tried to fool him," proudly.

"You can even fool yourself--maybe, but you can't fool me. You'd sacrifice Reuben any day for Gary."

"Aren't you assuming a great deal?" haughtily.

"I'm assuming nothing." Great waves of life swept over Cissy. She bit her newly painted lips to steady them. "I know because I love Reuben myself. I've loved him all my life and I'll keep right on loving him until I die. I'm that kind of a fool."

Stillness in the pine scented room. Neither woman moved. Neither seemed to breathe. Each watched the other, waiting for the next word, the next move.

With an effort Cissy said, defiantly. "Now you know."

"I knew before."

"I'm not very subtle."

Plenty of Cause for Rejoicing!

the Post-Crescent's 17th Annual

COOKING SCHOOL

STARTS TUESDAY, MAY 10,
RIO THEATRE* 9 A. M. FOR 4 BIG DAYS!

BIGGER and
than ever before!

Because this cooking school is greater than any of its predecessors, you'll want to attend every session. Therefore, when tickets go on sale, BE SURE TO GET YOURS EARLY. A 10 cent ticket guarantees you a seat.

Husbands are happy because the 17th Annual Cooking School means a new angle on the meals that will be served after MARY ANN KIDD has let women of the Appleton area in on her secrets of successful meal preparation! Wives are happy because the Cooking School brings them more information, entertainment and grand surprises than any of the sixteen that have preceded it. Along with valuable information and valuable free gifts, the Post-Crescent also offers TOM TEMPLE'S great orchestra - brought back by popular demand - and a scintillating style show. The seventeenth annual Cooking School will be held in the morning - just like last year - because experience has proved that this hour is most satisfactory and interferes less with regular daily activities.

Mary Ann Kidd

* The Cooking School is timed to close before the noon hour. The regular Rio program goes on at 1:30 p. m. See Rio advertisements for details.

Committee Maps Fire Truck Plan

Proposed Agreement With Town of Buchanan Will Go to Council

Kaukauna—The fire and police commission will recommend to the common council tomorrow night that the town of Buchanan be allowed to keep its newly purchased fire truck in the Kaukauna city department quarters, Mike Gerharz, committee chairman, said this morning.

A written agreement between the commission and town of Buchanan representatives has been drawn by Harry F. McAndrews, city attorney, and will be presented to the council for acceptance or refusal. A meeting of the commission with Buchanan representatives was held Thursday evening at the municipal building.

The proposed agreement stipulates that Buchanan pay the city of Kaukauna $35 for each fire attended to, and $20 for each false alarm to which Kaukauna firemen bring the town's truck. The disposition of this money will be decided by the council, as the agreement does not cover it.

Under a council resolution Buchanan is now protected by the Kaukauna fire department until July 1. It was extended from June first at a recent meeting to give Buchanan representatives time to work out an agreement with the fire and police commission.

Kaukauna—The city of Kaukauna pocket directory, a 4-page booklet listing the city's officers, will be issued soon, Lester J. Brenzel, city clerk, has announced. The fact that no health officer has yet been appointed, a condition which probably will be remedied at the council meeting tomorrow night, has held up its publication, Brenzel said.

The Boxwood Barrier

By BLANCHE SMITH FERGUSON

have been badly stacked, haven't they?"

"Maybe."

"I," Cissy strove for lightness, "am calling for a new deal."

Judith smiled whimsically: "Good luck!"

"I hope you mean it because I'm warning you I mean to play a hard game this time. I mean to win Rube if I can. You don't care! You're letting him down—"

"Be careful, Cissy!"

"You'd better be careful yourself!" Cissy lighted a cigaret with fingers that were not quite steady. "There's a wreck ahead for somebody and it might be you."

Gathering up a jeweled gold bag and emerald velvet wrap with its chinchilla collar, Cissy trailed from the room on tall gold heels, leaving a whiff of gray smoke in her wake.

Judith stood for a moment gazing after her.

"Why do I let her disturb me? Why?" But as on the evening of her first visit to Goodloe's Choice, Cissy had rocked Judith's world to its very foundation.

Immediately Reuben ceased to be a dim shadow in the background of his wife's life. He became very real—loomed very large. In a flash she realized that Reuben was not the make believe world of laughter and whispered tenderness, but the real world that held the babies, spinach, carrots, clean laundry—without Reuben—

She dressed for the dance with utmost care in her one really fine remaining dress, a burnt orange chiffon aluring as sin. Fragile as a butterfly's wings.

"Silly to wear it through these woods," Judith told herself, sensibly, but she did not take it off. Instead she smiled at her reflection in the mirror with satisfaction. She was pretty again.

"I won't be frightened!" she went out on the porch to join Cissy. "Reuben will be late," she said easily, as though there had been no scene between them. "He always is."

"It wouldn't surprise me if he doesn't get here at all," Cissy replied with the too cheerful air of a woman who is trying to prepare herself for disappointment.

And then, almost as though her longing had brought him, Reuben's tall figure rounded the corner of the cabin.

"Hail fair maids!" He took the porch steps at a bound. Smiling at his wife and her guest with mock seriousness he said: "Your loveliness dazzles me."

"He didn't kiss her," Cissy noted with satisfaction. "A new deal is imminent—I hope I'll hold a trump or two."

The Queen Is Dead

That night brought startled realization to Judith that the breach between herself and Reuben had deepened and widened gradually, insidiously until each stood on opposite sides of a spanless chasm across which only the faintest echoes of their real selves were audible. If Reuben had become a shadow to her, she was only the most vaporous ghost to Reuben—a ghost to be tolerated and treated politely.

Being a ghost had its good points. One could stand on the side lines and view life impartially and unobserved. She saw Reuben more clearly from this distance than she ever had in the hectic, crowded days at Fordney's Gulch. The shadow was gaining substance. It gained vastly as she watched her husband dancing—with Cissy.

Judith's partner, a German professor, followed her gaze: "They dance well together."

"It was nothing that."

He laughed. "They have plenty of practice."

So! People were talking—Judith tried not to watch Reuben, conscious in every part of her of the new indefinable quality about him. He looked like a man who has awakened after a long sleep to more abundant strength.

power, happiness. He mingled with the dancers but was plainly not of them. He wore a detached look, a soaring look—

"The eagle," Cissy had called him that night at Goodloe's Choice. Had accused Judith of chaining him. "Well, he has cast away his chains tonight."

Cissy was besieged with partners. Here was a new experience for Judith. She was not the undisputed belle, the queen of Camp number 2 tonight. She had been dethroned ruthlessly and quite as a matter of act. A brighter star had appeared on the horizon. Cissy Rogers was old Clem's sole heiress. If that were not enough to make any girl a sensation old Clem's daughter had beauty. She had charm. She had old Clem's ready friendliness.

Judith acknowledged the end of her reign. "The Queen is dead—long live the Queen!" Her lips quirked whimsically and then she saw Gary—blond, splendid, making his way towards her.

Who said the queen was dead? Without the loss of a single step Gary took her from the professor.

He said: "I thought I'd never get here."

She said: "I thought you'd never come."

"The buyers arrived today like a swarm of locusts."

"So Cissy said."

"Cissy here?" indifferently.

"Visiting me over the week end. Come up tomorrow and help to entertain her."

"Oliver is expert at that. I'll entertain you."

Cissy and Reuben again! Not that it mattered. Nothing mattered save that Gary was here and that no one could lure him from her! (Copyright, 1938)

Tomorrow: Gary has something to tell Judith.
